Key D.C. Developer Indicted

Head of Douglas Development accused of bribing official

WASHINGTON | Douglas Jemal, a prominent city developer, was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of bribing a local government official to win favorable contracts, authorities said Tuesday.

Prosecutors claim Jemal, 62, gave the former deputy director of the D.C. Office of Property Management cash, free lodging in Las Vegas, sports tickets and other gifts in exchange for the special treatment.

Two other high-level employees at Douglas Development also were named in the eight-count indictment: Jemal's son, Norman, 36, an executive, and Blake Esherick, 42, the firm's leasing director. In addition to bribery, all three men are accused of conspiracy, fraud and tax evasion over a three-year period ending in April 2004.

U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia Kenneth L. Wainstein said the alleged scheme represented a "significant loss" for city taxpayers, though he added it was difficult to determine how much the questionable contracts cost the District.

A woman who answered the telephone Tuesday at Douglas Development said the firm had no comment. The company manages more than 8 million square feet of commercial and residential space in the region. Among its more notable projects was the redevelopment of a downtown block which is now home the International Spy Museum.

The indictments come more than 10 months after Michael Lorusso, the former city official, pleaded guilty to charges he funneled millions of dollars to two area contractors. Lorusso — fired by the city in 2003 — awaits sentencing. BRIAN WESTLY (AP)

REPRESENTATIVES | Vote or Die Police in Upper Dir, Pakistan, are investigating the election last month of two dead women as councillors, the News reported. Election rules required a certain number of women on the ballot; one of the women who was elected died 13 years ago, the other three years ago, election officials said. If confirmed, there would have to be a new election for those seats and charges would be brought against those who nominated the women. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

RETURN TRIPS

'E' — the Underrated Anti-Theft Device

Two men found themselves in handcuffs last week after they stole a Pensacola, Fla., gas station employee's car — and then returned an hour later to get a fill-up, police said. Pam Pease was sweeping the parking area when she noticed a familiar car pull up to pump No. 7: It was her blue 1994 Ford Escort, which she had reported stolen less than an hour earlier. "It just blew my mind, but there they were," Pease said. "I'm glad it was low on gas." An attendant stalled Artemio Castillo and Ernesto Garcia by offering them water while other employees called 911. (AP)

HOW-TO

Change? Uh, Lemme Check the Manual

Find it hard telling apart the truly needy people from the swindlers? A new manual in Shanghai, China, tells you how to do it. The illustrated guide, "Recognizing Phonies," lists popular scams, from women faking pregnancies, to counterfeit monks and bogus students asking for tuition help. "Amid the great army of city vagrants, there is a cadre of professional beggars who prey on the sympathies of citizens," reads the manual, issued last month by the city. "There isn't a trick they won't try," it adds above a drawing of a kindly looking elderly couple forking over cash to a grinning scam artist. Shanghai officials say they are trying to improve a system of voluntary aid centers. (AP)

Shortly after Moses Bittok took the oath of citizenship Friday, he discovered he had a $1.89 million winning ticket from the Iowa Lottery's Hot Lotto game. "It's almost like you adopted a country and then they netted you $1.8 million," Bittok said Monday as he cashed in his ticket. "It doesn't happen anywhere — I guess only in America." (AP)

PORT ARTHUR, TEXAS

Officials: People 'Living Like Cavemen' in Texas Gulf Coast

Nearly four days after Hurricane Rita hit, many of the storm's sweltering victims along the Texas Gulf Coast were still waiting for electricity, gasoline, water and other relief Tuesday, prompting one top emergency official to complain that people are "living like cavemen." Crews in the hard-hit refinery towns of Port Arthur and Beaumont predicted it could be a month before power is restored. (AP)

Bush Views Rita's Damage

Brown Goes on Defensive

Ex-FEMA director blames local leaders for failures after Katrina

WASHINGTON | A combative Michael Brown blamed the Louisiana governor, the New Orleans mayor and even the Bush White House that appointed him for the dismal response to Hurricane Katrina in a fiery appearance Tuesday before Congress. In response, lawmakers alternately lambasted and mocked the former FEMA director.

House members' scorching treatment of Brown, in a hearing stretching nearly 6 hours, underscored how he has become an emblem of the deaths, lingering floods and stranded survivors after the Aug. 29 storm. Brown resigned Sept. 12 after being relieved of his onsite command of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's response effort three days earlier.

At several points, Brown turned red in the face and slapped the table in front of him.

"So I guess you want me to be the superhero, to step in there and take everyone out of New Orleans," Brown said.

"What I wanted you to do is do your job and coordinate," Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., retorted.

Brown acknowledged making mistakes during the storm that devastated the Gulf Coast. But he accused New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin and Louisiana Gov. Kathleen Blanco, both Democrats, of fostering chaos and failing to order a mandatory evacuation more than a day before Katrina hit.

"My biggest mistake was not recognizing by Saturday that Louisiana was dysfunctional," Brown told a special panel set up by House Republican leaders to investigate the catastrophe. Most Democrats, seeking an independent investigation, stayed away in protest. LARA JAKES JORDAN (AP)

Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., theorized Tuesday on why the Bush administration allowed Brown to resign after he was pulled from Katrina relief efforts rather than firing him.

→ REP. CHRISTOPHER SHAYS, R-CONN.: I feel like you weren't fired because the bottom line was you had made these arguments privately. And so I'm left with the feeling like the administration feels they have to protect you because you warned them. But you didn't warn us.

→ MICHAEL BROWN: Well, you should come over here and sit in this chair and see how protected you feel; feel how it feels to be yanked out of where you were trying to do your damndest to make something work and told to go back home; and make the decision that you're going to quit because you're no longer effective....

→ SHAYS: No, because you didn't do a good job is why you were let go, because you were clueless about what was happening....

Police: Post-Storm Violence Exaggerated

NEW ORLEANS | On Sept. 1, with desperate Hurricane Katrina evacuees crammed into the convention center, Police Chief Eddie Compass reported: "We have individuals who are getting raped; we have individuals who are getting beaten."

The stories were told by residents trapped inside the Superdome and convention center and were repeated by public officials. But now, a month after the chaos subsided, police are finding that many of those reports have little or no basis in fact.

They have no official reports of rape and no eyewitnesses to sexual assault. The state Department of Health and Hospitals counted 10 dead at the Superdome and four at the convention center. Only two are believed to have been murdered.

"Now that we've had a chance to reflect back on that situation, we're able to say right now that things were not the way they appeared," said police Capt. Marlon Defillo. (AP)

Fight Looms Over Next Court Pick

With Roberts' approval a lock, GOP sets stage to replace O'Connor

WASHINGTON | With John Roberts' confirmation as chief justice now assured, Republicans on Tuesday began pressuring the Senate's minority Democrats to promise what they called a fair confirmation for President Bush's next Supreme Court nominee.

Bush could announce his choice to replace retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor as early as Thursday, the same day the senators plan to overwhelmingly confirm Roberts as the 17th chief justice.

While Roberts is assured his seat, confirmation could be tougher for O'Connor's replacement. She often has been a swing vote, a majority maker whose replacement could signal a shift on the court on many contentious issues including abortion and affirmative action.

Democrats have successfully filibustered several of Bush's conservative choices for lower courts, and Republicans are jumping out front to try and dissuade them from attempting to do the same to Bush's next pick, who probably will be someone more conservative than O'Connor. (AP)

New Orleans Police Chief Resigns

Compass leaving a force that fell into disarray after Katrina

NEW ORLEANS | Police Superintendent Eddie Compass resigned Tuesday after four turbulent weeks in which the police force was wracked by desertions and disorganization in Hurricane Katrina's aftermath.

"I served this department for 26 years and have taken it through some of the toughest times of its history. Every man in a leadership position must know when it's time to hand over the reins," Compass said at a news conference. "I'll be going on in another direction that God has for me."

As the city slipped into anarchy during the first few days after Katrina, the 1,700-member police department itself suffered a crisis. Many officers deserted their posts, and some were accused of joining in the looting that broke out.

Neither Compass nor Mayor Ray Nagin would say whether Compass was pressured to leave.

Compass talks with reporters after announcing his retirement Tuesday.

"It's a sad day in the city of New Orleans when a hero makes a decision like this," said Nagin, who appointed Compass in mid-2002. "He leaves the department in pretty good shape and with a significant amount of leadership."

New Orleans evacuees at a shelter in Baton Rouge disagreed over the chief's legacy and whether he should have resigned.

The mayor named Assistant Superintendent Warren Riley as acting superintendent.

Gas Price Hike Drives Up Mass Transit Ridership

ALBANY, N.Y. | Commuter rail, bus and subway ridership has risen across the country with more people turning to public transportation amid skyrocketing gasoline prices, officials said Tuesday.

Transit authorities around the country are reporting increased ridership with higher revenue, more crowded rail cars and buses and more hits on their Web sites.

From January through August, the Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority in Buffalo saw ridership rise 348,564 from last year, according to spokesman Douglas Hartmayer.

Ridership on the Trinity Railway Express commuter rail between Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas rose 15 percent so far in September, according to the American Public Transportation Association.

In the District, Metro said subway ridership was up both weekdays and weekends. After averaging 650,000 riders over the summer, the agency said it has seen some days this month with more than 700,000 riders.

Bay Area Rapid Transit in San Francisco saw its average weekday ridership rise to 334,428 this month, a 3.5 percent from a year earlier. (AP)

SENTENCING PHASE: Pfc. Lynndie England arrives at the courthouse in Fort Hood, Texas, with a member of her legal team, Capt. Katherine Krul, on Tuesday.

Reservist Gets 3 Years for Abuse

Soldier apologizes for Abu Ghraib photos, blames boyfriend

FORT HOOD, TEXAS | Army Pfc. Lynndie England, who said she was only trying to please her soldier boyfriend when she took part in detainee abuse at Iraq's Abu Ghraib prison, was sentenced late Tuesday to three years behind bars for her crimes.

England, convicted Monday of prisoner mistreatment, directed blame for her conduct toward Pvt. Charles Graner Jr. during her unsworn statement to the five military jurors who began deliberating her punishment late Tuesday.

England, the most recognizable of the reservists charged after graphic abuse photos, taken in late 2003, became public, was convicted Monday on six of the seven counts against her.

England's sentencing wrapped up the last of nine courts-martial of low-level soldiers charged in the abuse scandal, which severely damaged America's image in the Muslim world and tarnished the U.S. military at home and abroad. (AP)

Hostage Gave Atlanta Fugitive Crystal Meth

ATLANTA | Ashley Smith, the woman who says she persuaded suspected courthouse gunman Brian Nichols to release her by talking about her faith, discloses in a new book that she gave him methamphetamine during the hostage ordeal.

Smith did not share that detail with authorities at the time. But investigators said she came clean about the drugs when they interviewed her months later. They said they have no plans to charge her with drug possession.

In her book, "Unlikely Angel," released Tuesday, Smith, a 27-year-old widowed mother, says Nichols had her bound on her bed with masking tape and an extension cord. She says she asked for marijuana, but she did not have any, and she dug into her illegal stash of crystal meth instead.

Smith says the seven-hour ordeal in March made her realize she was a drug addict. She says she hasn't used drugs since the night before she was taken captive. (AP)

Iraq's No. 2 al Qaeda Leader Killed

Operative called key to insurgency; bomber stopped in Green Zone

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraqi and U.S. forces claimed a major blow against one of the country's deadliest insurgent groups Tuesday, saying they killed the No. 2 leader of al Qaeda in Iraq who masterminded a brutal escalation in suicide bombings that claimed nearly 700 lives in Baghdad since April.

Despite the reported success, a suicide attacker blew himself up in a police recruitment center in the town of Baqouba, north of the capital, killing nine people. In Baghdad, gunmen killed four policemen. At least 66 people, including four U.S. service members, have been killed in attacks since Sunday.

But the week's death toll could have been far higher: U.S. Marines intercepted a suicide bomber who had succeeded in driving his explosives-packed vehicle into the capital's heavily fortified Green Zone and reached within a mile of the U.S. Embassy.

The discovery raised concerns about security in the zone, where U.S. and Iraqi government buildings and residences are located. A U.S. military spokesman said the driver of the car was arrested and the military detonated the vehicle.

The al Qaeda in Iraq No. 2, Abdullah Abu Azzam, was killed in a gunbattle that broke out when he opened fire on troops raiding his hide out in an apartment building in Baghdad before dawn Sunday, Lt. Col. Steve Boylan, a U.S. military spokesman, told the Associated Press.

Al Qaeda in Iraq issued an Internet statement denying Abu Azzam was the group's deputy leader, calling him "one of al Qaeda's many soldiers" and "the leader of one its battalions operating in Baghdad." It confirmed the raid but said it was not certain yet if he was killed. SAMEER N. YACCOUB (AP)

Russia's Putin Opens Door for Role After '08

MOSCOW | Russian President Vladimir Putin spoke to the nation in a televised question-and-answer session Tuesday, saying he was against changing the constitution to extend his rule but dropping a vague hint at a new role he might assume after stepping down.

The remarks were likely to fuel speculation that the Kremlin was mulling over ways for Putin to remain at the helm after his second and final terms ends in 2008, while some saw Putin's statement as an attempt to assuage concerns in his inner circle about succession.

"I don't consider it appropriate to introduce any changes in the constitution," he said in response to a caller's question, adding what could be interpreted as a hint that he wasn't going to entirely quit the political scene. "As they say in the military, 'I'll find my place in the ranks'" after 2008.

Putin

He refused to elaborate when reporters later prodded him to explain what he meant. "Let's preserve the intrigue," Putin said, according to the ITAR-Tass news agency.

Speculation has been rife that the Kremlin is searching for ways to keep Putin, who still enjoys a 70 percent approval rating, in place after his second term ends. (AP)

Israel Steps Up Gaza Military Strikes

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Israeli aircraft unleashed a barrage of missiles early Wednesday and fired live artillery shells into the Gaza Strip for the first time, pushing forward with an offensive despite a pledge by Islamic militants to halt their recent rocket attacks against Israel.

The Israeli airstrikes knocked out power in Gaza City, plunging virtually all of the city into darkness. The army said it targeted three buildings used for "terror activity" by the ruling Fatah Party, as well as two smaller armed groups, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Popular Resistance Committees.

Palestinian security officials said the buildings suffered substantial damage, but there were no injuries.

The airstrikes came hours after Islamic Jihad militants on Tuesday declared a halt to their recent rocket attacks, and armed Palestinian groups pledged to honor a tattered cease-fire, seeking to end the Israeli offensive. (AP)

Karzai's interior chief resigns after struggle to combat drug trade

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Afghanistan's interior minister, one of the most prominent faces in President Hamid Karzai's Cabinet, announced his resignation Tuesday after struggling to combat Afghanistan's booming drug trade.

Karzai's office played down the significance of Ahmad Ali Jalali's decision to quit, ostensibly to pursue an academic career in the United States. The president's chief of staff, Jawed Ludin, denied Jalali had disagreements with Karzai on fighting narcotics.

Jalali has expressed frustration about the alleged involvement of senior officials in Afghanistan's drug trade, even as the government has stepped up a campaign over the past year to crack down on the narcotics industry.

Karzai has declared a war on drugs amid concern Afghanistan is in danger of becoming a narco-state. There was a marked reduction this year in the area cultivated with opium poppy. But the U.N. estimates Afghanistan still produced 4,519 tons of opium, about 87 percent of the global supply.

Kabir Ranjbar, a political analyst, said Jalali's attempts to reform the Interior Ministry were stymied by Karzai's government and by powerful warlords who hold top provincial posts.

The appointment of Jalali's successor is subject to approval by the new National Assembly, voted for in the Sept. 18 elections.

With 9.2 percent of ballots counted from Kabul province, Karzai's top challengers in last year's presidential election — Mohammed Mohaqeq and Yunus Qanooni — had the most votes, according to results posted on the Web site of the U.N.-Afghan election board.

Ladner Wants To Remain at AU

Says no confidence vote by faculty is based on misinformation

WASHINGTON | American University president Benjamin A. Ladner, suspended while auditors investigate his spending, said Tuesday he hopes to return to campus despite a no confidence vote by faculty members.

Ladner

In an interview, Ladner defended his record at the private school. He accused a small group of people of trying to oust him for some time and said they were deliberately spreading misinformation.

"Of course I was very disappointed," Ladner said of Monday's no confidence vote by faculty at five of the university's six schools.

AU's board of trustees placed Ladner on administrative leave last month while they examine more than a half-million dollars spent by Ladner and his wife over the past three years.

Students are planning an anti-Ladner rally Wednesday evening.

Kilgore Slams VDOT's Transportation Strategy

RICHMOND, VA. | Republican gubernatorial nominee Jerry Kilgore accused the Virginia Department of Transportation of delaying hundreds of millions of federal highway dollars and wiping out an entire season of road construction in Virginia — a claim transportation experts denounced as categorically false.

Former Transportation Commissioner Philip Shucet, hailed by both parties for his reforms at the often maligned highway agency since 2002, bristled at Kilgore's claims.

Kilgore on Tuesday also aired a new campaign ad that accuses his Democratic rival, Tim Kaine, of advocating a gasoline tax increase in 2004, an assertion at odds with Kaine's legislative position in that year's bitter tax fight. BOB LEWIS (AP)

READY TO SHUCK: Virginia's oyster shucking industry depends on the Gulf Coast to supply about 90 percent of its stock. Promoting the Protection of All Animals

That's the mission of The Humane Society of the United States.

We rescue animal victims of disaster and sponsor certified teams of search and rescue dogs and their handlers.

We help people strengthen lifelong bonds with their animal companions and find solutions to the problems that too often separate pets and their families.

We offer advice on providing for a beloved pet's future, even if something happens to the pet's owner.

We raise awareness of the connection between animal abuse and human violence.

NEW YORK FCC Extends 911 Deadline For Web Phone Providers

The Federal Communications Commission backed off again Tuesday on enforcing a deadline for Internet phone service providers to disconnect all customers who haven't acknowledged that they understand it may be hard to reach a live emergency dispatcher when dialing 911. All carriers who have not received confirmations from at least 90 percent of their subscribers will have until Oct. 31 to reach that level. (AP)

Katrina Shakes Consumer Views

As energy concerns mount, confidence dips to 15-year low

NEW YORK | Consumer confidence suffered its biggest drop in 15 years in September as Hurricane Katrina made Americans anxious about the rising costs of heating their homes and filling their gas tanks. The decline raised questions about consumer spending for the rest of this year, including the holiday shopping season.

Meanwhile, the government reported Tuesday that new home sales plunged in August by the largest amount in nine months, continuing a string of mixed signals about the housing boom.

The Conference Board said its Consumer Confidence Index, compiled from a survey of U.S. households, dropped 18.9 points to 86.6 from a revised reading of 105.5 in August.

That marked the biggest slide since October 1990, when the index fell 23 points to 62.6 amid the onset of the recession, the buildup to the first Gulf war and a spike in gasoline prices. The September reading was also the lowest level since October 2003, when it registered 81.7.

Analysts had expected the September reading to be 98.

The Commerce Department said new home sales fell 9.9 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.24 million units. Even with the slowdown, the median sales price rose 2.5 percent from July's level to $220,300. The drop in new home sales could signal that the nation's red-hot housing market is starting to slow down, but reports so far are mixed.

The drop in consumer confidence also raised concerns about shoppers' ability to spend in the critical fall and holiday seasons with gas prices expected to remain at $3 per gallon. ANNE D'INNOCENZO (AP)

SPARSE HOME PAGE: Google Inc. has decided to stop boasting on its home page about the number of Web pages it has stored in its index, even as the online search engine continues to work to prove it scans more material than its rivals. The move marks the first time in more than five years that Google hasn't listed the size of its index on the home page. (AP)

Cars

$670,000

Cost of the world's most expensive car, the Saleen S7 Twin Turbo, according to Forbes magazine. In Europe, that is — it's a mere $550,000 in the United States.

Safety Comes First

2006 models are loaded with features to keep riders whole

SAFETY | The 2006 model year is a good one for consumers who value car safety: Nearly all new models are adding safety features, either as standard or optional equipment.

"Safety outpaces convenience by a large margin on consumers' wish lists," said automotive researcher J.D. Power and Associates of its annual Feature Contenting Report.

From the re-engineered, 2006 Mazda MX-5 Miata roadster, which is the first Miata ever with standard side airbags, to the 2006 Dodge Durango sport utility vehicle, the first Durango offering curtain airbags as an option, new models are getting safety upgrades.

Luxury vehicles continue to add perhaps the most cutting-edge safety features.

The Acura RL, for example, the luxury brand's top sedan, offers Acura's first Collision Mitigation system in the 2006 model year. When sensors on the RL detect the sedan is closing quickly on a vehicle ahead and there's a chance of a crash, the system can help prepare the car and its passengers for impact. It may automatically warn the driver, cinch seat belts and apply some brake power on its own, among other actions.

The Acura RL is so fancy, it can park right smack in front of the National Gallery.

Acura, which offers the system as an option on the RL, is one of only a handful of brands offering a sophisticated pre-crash system. Others include Mercedes-Benz and Lexus, and each of the systems is a bit different.

Mercedes' Pre-Crash not only cinches seat belts, it closes windows and the sunroof in the event of an impending crash. The Lexus Pre-Collision system cinches seat belts and preps the brakes for maximum power.

Among lower-priced vehicles, there is a push, particularly by South Korea-based automakers, to provide more safety items as standard equipment.

The two newest re-engineered models from Hyundai — the 2006 Tucson SUV and the 2006 Sonata mid-size sedan — come standard with a full complement of six airbags plus antilock brakes and electronic stability control with traction control. This is true of even the base versions of Tucson and Sonata.

Meantime, consumers shopping among the new 2006s can, for the first time, find a model with six standard airbags that's priced at just $11,110. It's the re-engineered, 2006 Kia Rio small car, the lowest-priced vehicle with that number of airbags. They include the two, federally mandated frontal airbags for driver and front passenger, two side-mounted airbags at the edges of the front seats, and curtain airbags that deploy from the ceiling on each side of the car to protect both front- and rear-seat passengers in a side crash.

In addition, Toyota has ensured that every one of its SUVs — from the small RAV4 to the full-size Sequoia — come standard with stability control with traction control, as well as an antilock brake system with Brake Assist (which helps provide maximum brake power in panic stops) and Electronic Brake Force Distribution (which helps maintain stability by evening out braking forces at the wheels).

After widespread publicity a few years ago about Ford Explorers rolling over, Ford Motor Co. has worked to make the model safer. The re-engineered 2006 Explorer includes more sophisticated airbags, and side impact airbags are standard for the first time.

Returning is the AdvanceTrac system with Roll Stability Control that was standard on 2005 Explorers and remains so. It works to lessen fishtailing and skidding, and has gyroscopic sensors to detect the start of a rollover. Within milliseconds, the system can reduce power from the engine and apply brakes to try to stabilize the SUV.

Among 2006 models, consumers should shop carefully. While the base Kia Rio sedan has six airbags, for example, it doesn't necessarily come with antilock brakes, which are standard on the uplevel Rio LX sedan, which starts at $12,985.

Consumers also shouldn't assume that all new vehicles are loaded with safety technology. For example, one of the competitors to Hyundai's Sonata — the refreshed, 2006 Chevrolet Impala — still requires an optional $600 for antilock brakes with traction control on some versions, and stability control for the Impala is not available at all. Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats monthly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

I recently bought a Ford Escape (2005, 3.0 liter V-6) that says it has electronic 4WD. I remember you once said the only true 4WD has a shifter in the cabin for high and low 4WD. Can you clarify?

By definition within the industry, to qualify to be four-wheel drive the vehicle must have a low-range gear in the transfer case. Whether it is activated by lever, push button or rotary switch makes no difference.

I own a 2000 Kia Sportage. My boyfriend is always flooring the gas pedal. He says it doesn't affect gas mileage or harm the car. I say he is wrong. Please help.

Hate to disagree with him, but one of the biggest single factors regarding poor fuel economy is a lead foot. Hard acceleration destroys fuel economy, shortens engine life and shortens transmission life. It's an exceedingly bad habit.

Do stick-shift cars really get significantly better gas mileage?

If you're really, really gentle on the accelerator and you really truly know when to shift, yes, although I doubt it would be significantly better. For the average driver, the automatic may do better.

Wakefield went 7 innings for the win.

Sox Keep Heat on The Yanks

BASEBALL | Tim Wakefield pitched the Boston Red Sox back into a share of first place — and saved a little bit for next time, too.

The knuckleballer helped Boston pull into a tie for the AL East lead on Tuesday with a 3-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays in the opening game of a day-night doubleheader.

Then he left, still strong after seven innings, so he would be fresh for a crucial start on three days' rest against the New York Yankees.

The Red Sox were tied with the Yankees heading into the nightcap of the split-admission doubleheader. The Yankees were scheduled to play the plummeting Orioles, losers of nine straight, in Baltimore.

The victory guaranteed that the AL East title will be up for grabs when New York comes to Fenway Park for a three-game, season-ending series this weekend. (AP)

PLAYING DIRTY: Jamey Carroll gives dirty uniforms a good name by consistently playing hard for the Washington Nationals.

No Give Up in Nats' Carroll

Utility infielder earns reputation for playing the game the right way

NATIONALS | Jamey Carroll is always running at top speed.

Just watch him. When he hits a fly ball to center, or a routine ground ball to short, or a come-backer to the pitcher. His head is down, his arms are pumping and he's flying down the line. Even as the Nationals head into tonight's game against the Florida Marlins with playoff hopes gone, the 5-foot-7, 170-pound utility infielder will never let up.

"I was told I was drafted because of two things," said Carroll. "I hit a ground ball to the shortstop, I hit a ground ball to the pitcher and I ran the exact same way down to first base. It wasn't anything good I did, it was that I tried. And when you do that, good things will come out of it."

Which is exactly what has happened for Carroll this season. Known as a solid fielder — he has not made an error in 23 starts at shortstop — and knowledgeable hitter who can work the count, Carroll's versatility has helped the Nationals overcome injuries all year. He has 280 at-bats — 53 more than his previous career high — and is hitting .328 with runners in scoring position.

But Carroll is respected most for the contributions you won't find in the box scores. "He's just a ball player," said catcher Gary Bennett. "Every day he's going to be dirty. He's going to be diving, stealing bases, doing the small things. He's the ultimate professional." GARY KARTON

The Padres: A Lost Cause

IT'S TOO BAD the Nationals played in the National League East and not the NL West this year.

Instead of already being eliminated from the playoffs, they'd be up by 2½ games with a week left to go.

As it stands now, the pathetic San Diego Padres are going to be playing baseball in October. At least until they get swept by the St. Louis Cardinals or whoever draws the large straw when the playoff pairings are finalized.

Just how bad are the Padres? The Cap City All-Stars could give them a game.

San Diego is 77-79 heading into

We'll have, without a doubt, the worst playoff team in history

Tuesday night's game against the San Francisco Giants. Yet they were leading the NL West — or NL Worst as it should be known — by three full games over those same Giants.

That would be the San Francisco team that played most of the season without its — and baseball's best — player, Barry Bonds.

The sad part is that it only became a race when Bonds came back two weeks ago. San Francisco is 8-2 in its last 10 games and still hasn't caught the no-account Padres. Talk about digging a serious hole for yourself.

I actually hope the Padres make the playoffs, but only if they squeak in with the under .500 record they have toyed with all season. An 81-81 record is almost respectable and San Diego doesn't deserve that for this year's farce.

Let them in with 80 wins and then we'll have, without a doubt, the worst playoff team in history.

Hokies Set to End Longtime Rivalry

League changes mean Va. Tech, W. Virginia can't play every year

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Upsets, noisy stadiums, burning couches and Michael Vick — all are a few of the lasting memories of the West Virginia-Virginia Tech rivalry.

Beamerball is making one final stop in Morgantown on Saturday.

Virginia Tech's move to the Atlantic Coast Conference last year and the subsequent addition of other teams to the Big East made it more difficult for the two schools to schedule each other.

"This will be the rubber match, so it will be nice to try to get on the top," said West Virginia coach Rich Rodriguez.

The schools have met every year since 1973, when Bobby Bowden was the Mountaineers' coach and Charlie Coffey was in his final season with the Hokies. Virginia Tech is 15-17 in that span.

Each team has dominated at one time or another. West Virginia did so early on, but Frank Beamer turned things around after becoming Hokies coach in 1987.

Over the past decade, the rivalry has stepped up in intensity because of close wins, upsets and what's been at stake. Including this year, it has involved a Top 10 team six times, with national title chances being extended, postponed or vanquished. The teams have split the last four meetings. JOHN RABY (AP)

Wizards Rookie Out of Hospital

WIZARDS | Washington Wizards rookie Andray Blatche was released from the hospital Tuesday, two days after being shot in an attempted carjacking. "He is doing very well, and we are very encouraged by his progress," Wizards president of basketball operations Ernie Grunfeld said. The Wizards open training camp next Tuesday in Richmond. Regarding Blatche's status, Grunfeld said, "At this time it is too early to determine a timetable for his return." (AP)

Depleted Jets Turn to an Old Friend

FOOTBALL | The desperate New York Jets brought back 41-year-old Vinny Testaverde on Tuesday after starting quarterback Chad Pennington and his backup Jay Fiedler were lost for the season with shoulder injuries.

In turning to Testaverde, who played for the Jets from 1998-2003, the team hopes he can back up untested third-stringer Brooks Bollinger, who is scheduled to start Sunday against the Baltimore Ravens.

"I'm excited, happy, nervous, anxious, about playing for the Jets again," Testaverde said.

Pennington and Fiedler were on the same flight to Alabama on Tuesday to see Dr. James Andrews, the noted orthopedist who repaired Pennington's rotator cuff in February. Edwards emphasized that Pennington's tear, revealed in an MRI exam Monday, damaged a different portion of his shoulder this time.

"I've never been in the situation where you lose the No. 1 and 2 quarterbacks in a span of seven plays," said coach Herman Edwards. (AP)

Vinny Testaverde, seen here in 2003, is going back to the NFL to play for the Jets.

Are you prepared to deal with a pay-for-performance system?

The Graduate School, USDA's course Principles of Classification is designed to meet the needs of agencies that have or soon will be implementing pay-for-performance systems, as well as those using current Title 5 systems. Intended for federal HR professionals, this course discusses basic, crosscutting principles needed to classify and analyze in all systems, including pay banding. In addition to classifying positions using current GS procedures, participants evaluate positions using pay banding systems currently in use at the FAA and the Navy's China Lake Research Center.

What will they do in an emergency?

Preparing for a natural disaster or terrorist attack takes a few simple steps:

- Prepare an emergency plan so you know how to find and reach your family. Write your plan down.
- Keep three gallons of water per person and non-perishable food in your home.
- Have a battery powered flashlight and radio, extra batteries, and a first aid kit.

Be ready. Make a plan. It makes a difference.

Bourque Among 5 Forwards Sent To Minor League

CAPITALS | Chris Bourque, the son of retired All-Star defenseman Ray Bourque, was among five forwards the Washington Capitals assigned to their AHL affiliate Tuesday.

Jared Aulin, Eric Fehr, Jakub Klepis and Dave Steckel also were sent to the Hershey Bears. Defenseman Jeff Schultz was assigned to junior club Calgary of the Western Hockey League.

Chris Bourque, a left wing, was a second-round draft pick last year. He played one season at Boston University.

The moves cut Washington's pre-season roster to 29 players, six above the limit that needs to be reached by Oct. 5, when the regular season starts. (AP)

Ennis Becomes Terps' Mr. Perfect

Junior earns respect of coaches, teammates by never missing kicks

TERPS FOOTBALL | Dan Ennis is a walk-on who weighs 154 pounds and does little more in practice than kick a football. With those kind of credentials, it would seem certain that he be the target of practical jokes or verbal abuse from his burly teammates at Maryland.

After all, isn't that the usual treatment given to placekickers? Ennis is an exception to the rule.

For one thing, the junior has not missed a kick this year. Best of all, he often saves his teammates from running sprints at the end of practice.

As each session draws to a close, Maryland coach Ralph Friedgen puts Ennis in a pressure-packed situation that rivals anything he might face in a real game: Make the kick, the team doesn't run. Miss it, and they do.

"He always seems to make it," right guard Andrew Crummey said Tuesday.

Ennis has made all nine of his field goal tries, ranging from 21 to 40 yards, and is 5-for-5 on extra points. Ennis made field goals of 23, 37 and 25 yards last Saturday in the Terrapins' 22-12 victory. Counting the four extra points he made as a redshirt freshman in 2003, he has never missed a kick in a college game.

"Everytime we've needed something, Dan has been there for us," Friedgen said. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

FACT: One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (Total Health Magazine)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

DOUBLE FEATURE: Tilly is known for playing airheads and baby-voiced girlfriends, but she can draw to an inside straight.

No Dizzy Dame

Jennifer Tilly draws a winning hand in poker and a sitcom

JUICY PARTS | Jennifer Tilly's in the pink.

"I'm wearing an outfit that looks just like a cupcake ... everything a little inappropriately girlie ... Pink, pink, lot of pink," said Tilly, gleefully describing how her character, Crystal, typically will be dressed in an upcoming scene on the new CBS sitcom "Out of Practice."

Crystal is the receptionist for Dr. Stewart Barnes, a gastroenterologist, played by Henry Winkler. She's also his love interest, the attraction enhanced by her breast implants. Stewart's son Oliver (Ty Burrell) is the plastic surgeon who performed the surgery. Lydia (Stockard Channing), Stewart's ex-wife, is a cardiologist. Their other son, Ben (Christopher Gorham), is a relationship counselor, and daughter Regina (Paula Marshall) is an emergency room medic.

Executive producer Joe Keenan, previously of "Frasier," said his new Monday-night series will offer comedy that "comes out of pain and difficult times, and the humiliations and the way people get through them and band together as a family in response."

The Barnes family is very conflicted, but very smart.

Crystal, the instigator of additional turmoil, isn't family and isn't smart, which suits Tilly just fine.

"It's not like, 'Ooh, this person is really stupid,'" she said. "It's just that they think differently ... A lot of people have a lot of clamor going on, a lot of worrying emotions, and a lot of information. People like Crystal are more single-cell people. When they are happy, they are happy. When they are sad, they are sad."

A veteran of many offbeat movies, she's played molls, dolls, vamps and dizzy dames, and will soon be seen as an aging rock groupie in Terry Gilliam's gothic tale "Tideland."

One motivation for taking the "Out of Practice" role, Tilly said, was to remind people that she is first and foremost an actress, not just an eye-catching celebrity with a distinctive cracked voice, stylish taste in clothes and exceptional skill at cards.

She recently won the Ladies No-Limit Texas Hold 'Em at the World Series of Poker and the World Poker Tour Ladies Night III — the first woman to hold both titles.

She doesn't always wear her winnings.

"That's the great thing about poker," she said. "You get jewelry. Oscar, Golden Globe, Emmy, you can't hang that around your neck. But everywhere you go, you've got your poker gold and diamond bracelet on; everyone knows you won."

Sean Paul Is Still Rock Steady

The dancehall star at least keeps his grooves intelligible

MUSIC | You know what they say about things that aren't broken. It's a philosophy international dancehall star Sean Paul seems to have taken quite to heart on his third album, "The Trinity."

He continues with the mix of hip-hop, reggae and dancehall that made his second album, "Dutty Rock," a Grammy-winning, multiplatinum success.

The recording is track after track of uptempo beats and his distinctive voice (although it's not always easy to figure out what he's saying.) While none of the songs has the immediate reach-out-and-grab-you effect of "Get Busy" off his previous album, there are some standouts, like the first single, "We Be Burnin,'" and "I'll Take You There."

Be warned, you will be dancing. DEEPTI HAJELA (AP)

SAY WHAT? Sean Paul's "Dutty Rock" didn't have to make sense to score a Grammy.

Inside ‘The Outsiders’

Coppola’s film grows with a new score and some added scenes

DVD | When “The Outsiders” was released in 1983, it wasn’t a blockbuster at the box office, but this look at misunderstood greasers growing up in 1950s-era Oklahoma certainly made an impression.

Francis Ford Coppola’s adaptation of S.E. Hinton’s novel emerged as the most popular of Hinton adaptations — including “Rumblefish” and “That Was Then, This Is Now” — and catapulted the careers of several young actors, including Matt Dillon, Diane Lane, Emilio Estevez, Patrick Swayze and Tom Cruise. It also gave adolescent girls a brand new cast of Teen Beat pin-ups to adore.

Now, more than 20 years later, “The Outsiders: The Complete Novel” has arrived on DVD with 22 minutes reinserted into the film and a mostly transformed musical score.

The book’s fans will likely be pleased by the new version, as will those who felt the original film lacked in the Rob Lowe department. He has much more screen time in this “Outsiders,” as the added scenes focus largely on the three Curtis brothers played by Lowe, Swayze and C. Thomas Howell.

The updated music, which includes period rock tunes from such artists as Jerry Lee Lewis and Elvis Presley, is generally a welcome improvement, though certain scenes might have benefited from original composer Carmine Coppola’s more dramatic approach.

BOYS IN THE HOOD, THEN: C. Thomas Howell, Tom Cruise and Emilio Estevez were among the then-unknowns upon whom “The Outsiders” conferred idolhood.

The second disc’s numerous engaging bonus features include “Staying Gold: A Look Back at ‘The Outsiders’”; a featurette hosted by Hinton; a giggle-inducing glimpse at the audition process for the film; a segment on the movie from the “Today” show; and a few additional scenes. The first disc also comes with two commentary tracks, one by Coppola and another featuring Swayze, Lane, Howell, Macchio, Lowe and Dillon.

Because of the teen-idol status conferred on virtually everyone in “The Outsiders,” it’s easy to forget how visually compelling and well acted the movie was. This DVD should serve as a permanent reminder.

'Get Up, Stand Up' tells the ongoing story of music in protest

MARCH TIME | Narrated by Chuck D. of Public Enemy, the documentary "Get Up, Stand Up: The Story of Pop and Protest" (10 p.m., PBS) is expansive and exhaustive. This survey course in relevant musicianship begins with the union-organizing ballads of Joe Hill and concludes with the recent worldwide Live 8 fund-raising concert.

"Get Up" spends a great deal of time with the music of the Civil Rights and Vietnam eras, but viewers will find their memories jogged by the volume of political music from the first decade of the MTV generation.

The enumeration of protest movements and music allows little time for reflection or dissent. Rap is praised for its honest discussion of gangs, drugs, violence and police brutality. But nobody discusses the genre's frequently degrading depiction of women, and only passing mention is made of its celebration of conspicuous materialism.

Band Aid organizer Bob Geldof offers the film's most emphatic observation—that being a do-gooder has ruined his musical career. "Nobody wants to see Mother Teresa at the top of the pops." KEVIN

Opera singers add better health, fitness habits into the score

The days of the fat opera singer are waning. Opera has become an increasingly visual medium, because of the influence of television and film, and directors want singers to look the part, not just sing it. They now demand more physical prowess from performers — a swordfight should resemble a swordfight, not a couple of guys vaguely lunging at each other.

But singers who have jumped on the treadmill have discovered something else — being fit makes them better singers. It's why mezzo-soprano Milena Kitic is in the basement gym of her expansive Pasadena, Calif., home gearing up for an intense hourlong workout with her trainer.

Kitic, who has sung with the Los Angeles Opera, Opera Pacific and the Washington National Opera, has learned that being in shape makes her better able to handle the rigors of performing and touring. She embodies the new generation of fitness-minded opera singers who believe that good health and their careers are inexorably intertwined.

A former competitive gymnast as a child in her native Yugoslavia, 38-year-old Kitic always has been active, regularly incorporating some kind of exercise into her routine, even if it was doing aerobics and stretching in a small hotel room.

Although fitness always has been part of her life, her renewed focus on strength and endurance has made a difference in her performances. "I can sing, move as much as I like, and still look nonchalant about it, not out of breath and sweating," she said.

helps you to bring that role out easier and helps the audience to accept you. The industry has changed. It's become a whole different business nowadays."

This became glaringly apparent last year when American soprano Deborah Voigt was unceremoniously dumped from the London Royal Opera House production of "Ariadne auf Naxos" because her abundant physique wouldn't fit into the black evening dress designed for her character.

It was then that the world caught a glimpse of this major shift in the opera world: With a few notable exceptions, there is little tolerance for obesity — especially among women. No longer do singers and

All That New Orleans Jazz

Preservation Hall musicians regroup beyond the Big Easy

John Brunious flew in from an evacuation center in Arkansas, wearing donated clothes and carrying a borrowed trumpet, his voice shot from swallowing polluted floodwater.

The 64-year-old leader of the Preservation Hall Jazz Band went straight from the plane to a Manhattan TV studio for a reunion with the world's ambassadors of New Orleans jazz. The musicians could play only one tune that night. Everyone agreed it should be "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans?"

"I was so happy to see that the others were OK, because I knew what I had just come from," said Brunious, 64, who was treated for dehydration at an Arkansas hospital after enduring days without food and water at the horrific New Orleans Convention Center.

For more than 40 years, the Preservation Hall musicians have spread their infectious, joyful rhythms to people worldwide, from African villagers to British royalty. Jazz lovers from around the world have made the pilgrimage to pass through Preservation Hall's wrought-iron gates at 726 St. Peter Street.

Inside the dimly lit hall, which dates back to 1750, with no air conditioning, fans sat on benches or cushions spread on the rough wooden floor as they listened to pure, unadulterated, traditional New Orleans jazz.

Despite their worldwide renown, the Preservation Hall musicians remain deeply rooted in their local neighborhoods, where such legends as Buddy Bolden, King Oliver, Jelly Roll Morton and Louis Armstrong created jazz nearly a century ago.

"We don't live in an ivory tower. We live with our communities and care for our communities, said bassist Benjamin Jaffe, 34, Preservation Hall's director.

"We all feel that we were down and then we got kicked, and that's a terrible place to feel right now," he said during an interview at the Manhattan office of the distributor for the Preservation Hall Recordings label, where his staff is working until they can return home. Like most of the French Quarter, the building suffered only minimal damage from Katrina.

The band last performed at Preservation Hall on Aug. 27, a Saturday night, one day before Katrina hit.

In the days after Katrina hit, Jaffe desperately tried to track down his fellow musicians. It was the first time he could remember that the band — most of whom lived within a few miles of each other — had been separated for so long.

Jaffe has been scrambling to prepare for a previously arranged international tour scheduled to begin in Thailand on Wednesday — securing new passports, outfitting the musicians and replacing missing instruments.

"I don't know when Preservation Hall will reopen, but all I know is that it will reopen," Jaffe said.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be willing to talk about what concerns you if you expect others to help you address the problem. You needn't be secretive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Don't try to do something that hasn't been fully explained to you or that you haven't already mastered. Keep experimentation to a minimum.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Ingenuity can serve you well, but even more valuable to you will be the willingness to trust in traditions honored by you and yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) One by one you should be able to dispose of a few personal enemies that lie within. This can be a memorable, even triumphant day for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have what it takes to climb to the top with remarkable speed, but don't take on too much too soon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may be going out on a limb for the sake of someone who needs your help. Be careful that you don't let yourself get into real trouble.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may have to bend a little simply to avoid breaking altogether. Someone you know is putting a great deal of pressure on you now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may need to dig deeply into your bag of tricks to get someone else to change his or her mind and support you unconditionally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A conflict between the simple and the complex will rage on despite your attempts to get things to meet in the middle. Be patient.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A personal discovery on your part will open many doors for others as well. Career advancement is certainly in the picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's up to you to keep everything honest and out in the open. Don't let anyone try to short-change you or take advantage of you in any way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may want to place yourself at the disposal of another to see what there is for you still to learn.

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

Sounding the Smoke Alarm

So my boyfriend and I are going to be doing the whole big "meet my parents" thing this Thanksgiving. My parents have heard a lot about him, since we've been dating since January and have gotten pretty serious. One thing I haven't mentioned: He's a smoker. I come from a non-smoking family, and I find myself getting embarrassed when I think of what they're going to think. He's definitely lessened his smoking since he's been with me, but he still tends to do it after meals and when he gets stressed. Should I tell them outright? —DC, NERVOUS

Hmm. After meals and when he gets stressed. Well, at least that won't come into play at a meet-the-parents Thanksgiving dinner!

Your boyfriend is who he is. You care enough about him to have told your nonsmoking parents about him, to invite him to their nonsmoking house and to let your nonsmoking self get "serious" with him. If you're not careful, your fixation on this particular aspect of him and your tendency to make smoking versus nonsmoking a Hatfield-McCoy-type division is going to make him even more nervous. Give him the heads-up that your parents don't smoke and that he'll probably need to go outside, but don't make him feel like a second-class citizen.

I went to one of those speed-dating events and didn't seem to click with anyone, while a friend of mine who did it with me is happily scheduling her first dates with three guys! This tends to happen often, and in general I feel like my dating "volume" is a lot less than other people's. I don't think it's a problem of opportunity — I get enough offers — but I do wonder if I'm being too picky.

—NON-SERIAL DATER, VA.

Unless you have an affinity for artichoke-spinach dip and awkward conversation, you need not supersize your first-date frequency just to increase "volume." Quality over quantity makes sense here, so waiting until you actually want to go out with someone shouldn't be a radical idea. And unless your pickiness is a front for self-sabotage or some other mental block (which you might suspect if it's been years), it's hard to imagine that "Lower your standards!" is ever a good motto for the world of dating.

Send your mental health and emotional wellness questions to Andrea Bonior, Ph.D. at baggage@readexpress.com. This column is not a substitute for one-on-one care.

THE LETTERS IN TUESDAY'S Express did not surprise me. Cindy Sheehan got extensive coverage in the media. The Post and Express have followed her travels. Yet, when Express makes the choice to cover the one rally in support of military families in D.C., it's accused of "pro-war propaganda." I guess the Left wants a monopoly on press coverage and free speech.

Newspapers Report the New

NOTE TO THOSE WHO expressed anger at Monday's front page picture: This is not "propaganda" but rather the reporting of news. The Monday Express reports Sunday's news, which happened to include the rally for the troops. Check out Sunday's Washington Post for reporting on Saturday's anti-war march.

✱ Pretty ways to help fight breast cancer

WHEN MOST PEOPLE THINK OF October, they think about the bright reds, yellows and orange of the turning leaves, or the orange and black associated with Halloween. The fashion and beauty industries, though, think pink — the color that represents breast cancer awareness. And shoppers will see a lot of it in the coming weeks.

Tangerine Dreams and Eye-Burning Mornings

The AROMA-REST THERAPEUTIC SLEEP PILLOW ($99, genesis4life.com) is simple to use: Insert aromatic cartridges of varying missions — relaxation, appetite suppression — into either side of the foam slab, then sleep. One tester conked right out using the lavender and tangerine relaxation blend, though she felt the pillow’s shape discriminated against tummy sleepers. Of particular interest to this reporter, who generally can tolerate no smell stronger than Ivory soap, was the allergy blend. Did it prevent allergies? Was it for people with allergies? Six hours and two burning eyes later, we knew: It causes allergies. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

NICOLE KIDMAN, unlike ex-husband Tom Cruise, thinks psychiatry is a worthwhile profession that can help people. "I think people choose things that they need that are going to help them." She plays a psychiatrist in the upcoming film, "The Visiting." (AP)

NO WAY

Supremely Weird

ANNA NICOLE SMITH is going to the U.S. Supreme Court. The court on Tuesday said it would consider Smith's appeal over the fortune of her late husband. She has not gotten any money from the estate of J. Howard Marshall II, the oil tycoon who married her in 1994 when he was 89 and she was 26. Marshall, one of Texas' wealthiest men, died in 1995; Smith stands to win as much as $474 million. (AP)

Pamela Embraces Restraint

PAMELA ANDERSON filed a request for a restraining order against a man she claims has confronted her and her children, court records show. Anderson contends that William Stansfield, 29, has been "stalking and harassing me, my sons and other family members for more than a month," according to court documents obtained by the TV show "Extra." (AP)

Melania and Trump will undoubtedly have interesting-looking children.

DONALD TRUMP's wife, MELANIA, is pregnant. "The baby is due in the spring," said spokeswoman Norma Foerderer, adding that the child's gender is not yet known. It would be the first child for the 35-year-old model and commercial actress, who lived with Trump for three years before they exchanged vows in January. (AP)

"One Tree Hill" stars CHAD MICHAEL MURRAY and SOPHIA BUSH said Monday they are calling it quits after five months of marriage. Bush, 23, and Murray, 24, met while filming the WB show, on which she plays cheerleader Brooke Davis and Murray plays Lucas Scott, a brooding intellectual. "This is a difficult and unfortunate situation," Bush said. "I am glad this is being resolved sooner rather than later." (AP)

The average job listing in The Post is two days old. The average job listing online is two months old.

WEBSITES HOLD ONTO LISTINGS FOR MONTHS AT A TIME. SO EVEN IF YOU HAPPEN TO FIND A JOB THAT INTERESTS YOU, THERE'S A GOOD CHANCE IT'S LONG GONE. THAT'S NOT THE CASE WITH THE POST WHERE THE TYPICAL JOB LISTING IS JUST ONE OR TWO DAYS OLD. FRESHNESS

COUNTS FOR A LOT WITH JOB LISTINGS. EXACTLY WHY THE POST IS THE FIRST PLACE THAT SERIOUS JOB

THE LOCAL EXPERT ON LOCAL JOBS.

SEEKERS IN THE WASHINGTON AREA WILL LOOK. AND WHY IT'S ALSO THE FIRST PLACE MORE LOCAL EMPLOYERS ALWAYS TURN TO REACH THEM.

8 out of 10 people who look for a job, look in The Post.
